Claims 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, 11, 13, and 15 define over the art of record in that none of the art takes a laser Doppler flowmeter signal from 2 locations, takes the wavelet transformation of each, integrates the transformed signal to obtain a vasomotion energy, subtracts the resulting energy of one of the locations from the other, and integrates this difference to obtain a parameter indicative of perfusion of a tissue region. Claims 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14, and 16 define over the art of record in that none of the art takes a laser Doppler flowmeter signal from 3 locations, takes the wavelet transformation of each, integrates the transformed signal to obtain a vasomotion energy, subtracts the resulting energy of the second location from the first location and subtracts the energy from the third location from the first location, takes the average of the two differences, and integrates the average difference to obtain a parameter indicative of perfusion of a tissue region.
